

340300102

specific illustrated embodiment, but only by the scope of the appended claims.

[0066]

The invention makes it possible to block illegitimate access from outside to, and thereby protect, confidential information kept inside a processor and the contents of external memories such as a local memory and a flash memory that are connected to a processor.